Dear ceecon guests,

with the DGO Congress of Central and East European Studies, we are realising a long-cherished idea: an international forum for academic exchange on topics related to Eastern Europe held in Germany. This congress creates a space for the discussion of new topics and approaches in research and for interdisciplinary dialogue. Furthermore, ceecon offers young academics a forum for presenting their research projects.

ceecon is an academic congress. But academic work always takes place in a social and political environment that influences research questions and working methods. Russia's war against Ukraine makes this painfully clear. Many of the panels on offer at the congress respond directly to this escalation of violence, raising questions about the way modern autocracies work and the role of historiography, literature, and religion in times of war, as well as the consequences of war for the development of the rule of law in individual states. We also take the opportunity to discuss how the past 30 years of political and social transition have impacted research agendas within the humanities and social sciences. And we ask to what extent scholarly work and international collaboration are even possible under wartime conditions and the growing trend towards authoritarianism. Politics influences academic work, but academic work can also give impulses to society and politics. This is another reason why ceecon is an important forum.

We would like to thank all those who made this congress possible. The organizing committee as well as the members of our seven academic expert groups and the Junge DGO have designed the program together with our partner, the Institute for East European Studies at the Freie Universität Berlin. In the Institute, we have found both a very competent partner and generous host. The Arsenal Cinema and the Ukrainian Film Festival have enabled us to involve the Berlin public in the congress as well. The Federal Ministry of Education and Research and Freie Universität Berlin have also provided support to ceecon from their own funds. Finally, we thank you for accepting our invitation to attend.

Ruprecht Polenz

President, German Association for East European Studies

Welcome to ceecon 2022

ceecon, the DGO-Congress of Central and East European Studies, is the largest multidisciplinary congress on Central and Eastern Europe to be held in the German-speaking countries. It was established in 2022 as a cooperative project between the German Association for East European Studies (Deutsche Gesellschaft für Osteuropakunde, DGO) and the Institute for East European Studies (Osteuropa-Institut, OEI) at the Freie Universität Berlin.

As a forum of exchange and discussion of the latest research in Central and East European Studies, ceecon is an important venue for the international research community. Seven discipline-specific sections address questions of research from a broad array of subjects and examine approaches in methodology. Plenary sessions provide a space for academic exchange on topics relevant to all scholars in the field. A special time slot is reserved for the presentation of research projects by junior scholars.

The effects of Russia's war against Ukraine on East European Studies will be one of the key issues at this year's congress. Round table discussions will examine the war's repercussions on research and methodology as well as the challenges of international academic collaboration in times of war.

Nariman Aliev/Ukraine 2019 OMEU
96 min.

Friday, October 7, 2022 >> Kino Arsenal

19:30–21:30

HOMEWARD brings together the two landscapes of the Russian invasion in 2014: the war in the Donbass and the occupied Crimea. Crimean Tatar director Nariman Aliev tells the story of a father who tries to bring the body of his son, a victim of the war in Donbass, from Kyiv to Crimea to be buried according to the rite of the Muslim Crimean Tatars. The arduous journey reveals how the experience of the current war in Ukraine calls up the repressed history of violence against the Crimean Tatars.

Introduction: Susanne Strätling

The film will be followed by a discussion with Tamila Tasheva (NGO CrimeaSOS; representative of the President of Ukraine in the Autonomous Republic of Crimea since April 2022) and Victoria Leshchenko (Programme Director of Docudays UA). Moderation: Daria Buteiko (Ukrainian Film Festival Berlin).

Organized by DGO and the Institute for Eastern European Studies of Freie Universität Berlin with the Ukrainian Film Festival Berlin.

German Association for East European Studies (DGO)

The German Association for East European Studies is the largest network within the German speaking realm engaged in research on East European affairs. Since 1913, the DGO has been active as a forum for the discussion and analysis of politics, economics, and culture in Europe's East. It provides information about current developments, serves as a conduit of knowledge, and promotes dialogue between East and West.

DGO members are important multipliers from academia, politics, commerce and industry, cultural life, and the media. The DGO is an independent, non-profit organisation based in Berlin, and a member of the International Council for Central and East European Studies (ICCEES).

The association's work includes:

- >> academic conferences and congresses for experts and the general public
- >> publishing of two academic journals, as well as a variety of regular regional analysis
- >> networking and the mediation of experts
- >> the advancement of young academics.

Seven sections within the DGO promote academic exchange in the fields of Economics, Geography, History, Law, Literary and Cultural Studies, Political and Social Sciences, and Religion. Furthermore, over 20 branch offices serve as regional platforms for East-West dialogue.

Institute for East European Studies - Freie Universität Berlin

The Institute for East European Studies, founded in 1951, is an interdisciplinary regional institute housed at the Freie Universität Berlin. Here on the Dahlem Campus, the Institute's teaching, research, and advising reflect the dynamics of the numerous transformation processes currently underway in the eastern part of our continent. Eastern Europe is a heterogeneous, conflict-ridden, and – due to the expansion of the European Union – very important region full of issues and challenges. Berlin is the best place to study them. Berlin is not only a meeting place for the cultures, peoples, and markets of East and West: as host to countless East European-focused institutions and initiatives, Berlin is also home to Germany's Eastern Europe expertise. The Institute for East European Studies plays an essential role in this context, with its programs and academic networks in Berlin and Brandenburg as well as in Eastern Europe.

Programs, research and publications of the Institute for East European Studies

- >> The Institute for East European Studies' course offerings are concentrated around the multidisciplinary, contemporary-focused master degree program „East European Studies,“ which was founded several years ago.
- >> Research focuses primarily on contemporary topics and their historical roots, particularly those related to the transformation processes in East Central, Southeast, and Eastern Europe. Additional areas of research include cultural questions and the examination of ethnonational conflicts in the East European space.
- >> With its approximately 360,000 volumes, the library of the Institute for East European Studies provides an excellent resource for research
